A WELCOME FROM OUR CEO

In 2025, NACCA proudly continues the journey it began in 2019 with the launch of the Indigenous Prosperity Forum, an event that has grown into a cornerstone of the Indigenous economy's evolution. As we step into this new chapter, we are embracing the theme of authenticity—grounding ourselves in Indigenous values and traditions, while also navigating the rapid advances of the modern world. For Indigenous youth and women in particular, this means thriving in two worlds at once: preserving culture while leading the way in innovation, technology, and business.

The need for authenticity is more crucial than ever in 2025. As we modernize, we must rely on our traditions to create resilient, sustainable economic pathways for future generations. From procurement and green energy to artificial intelligence, and from open banking to data-driven decision making, our discussions will reflect a balance between the traditional wisdom of our Elders and the dynamic vision of our youth and emerging leaders. Indigenous women—the backbone of our communities—are at the forefront of this effort, leading with strength and vision. Likewise, Indigenous youth, the future of our economy, are stepping up to design innovative solutions that honour their heritage while embracing the opportunities of the digital age.

In 2025, we invite you to join us as we continue to shape the Indigenous economy, rooted in the values that have sustained us for generations, yet driven by the passion and fervor needed to compete and thrive in today's world. Our economy is resilient, built on the strength of our communities, and positioned to lead Canada toward a more inclusive and prosperous future.

The 2025 Indigenous Prosperity Forum, hosted by the National Aboriginal Capital Corporations Association (NACCA) and the network of Indigenous Financial Institutions (IFIs), will be held on May 7th and 8th, 2025 at the Hilton Lac-Leamy in Gatineau, QC. This year, we continue to expand the conversation around critical topics such as procurement, innovation, trade, export, business equity, impact measurement, and more.

We are honoured to have some of the brightest Indigenous leaders and thought experts join us to offer their insights. The event will once again feature the NACCA Gala and Awards, celebrating the resilience and achievements of our IFI partners, accompanied by world-class Indigenous entertainment.

We look forward to your participation in this important dialogue. Together, we will continue to build an Indigenous economy that is as authentic as it is innovative—ensuring prosperity for future generations.
